

Wabash Puts In Concrete Crossing At Orland Park

A force of about 75 men is engaged in building a concrete crossing on the Wabash right of way on 143rd street just north of the depot in Orland Park. The crossing is 75 feet long and extends clear across the main line tracks and passing tracks. This crossing is being built extra strong. The foundation is two feet deep and heavily reinforced. A quick drying cement is used. The regular cement otherwise used takes 27 days to harden.

The main line tracks have been disconnected north and south of the crossing and a detour track has been laid around the work. Soon as the concrete is set between the main line tracks, these tracks will be connected up again and the detour track will be taken up. When finished this will be the largest and most substantial railroad crossing in this part of Cook County. The cost of the improvement is being borne by the Wabash and Cook County.

Orland Favors Community Fire Truck Purchase

A movement is on foot to purchase a community fire truck. The plan is collect subscriptions from all the residents in Orland and from the farmers residing in the vicinity of Orland Park. It is pointed out that the farmers would receive as much protection as the village people if there was a community fire truck in Orland at the time of fire.

Mokena P. T. A. Sponsors Bunco

The Mokena P. T. A. is sponsoring a bunco party at the new school on Friday evening of this week. A musical program will also be given by the local Blue Bird Orchestra. Everyone is welcome.

Want Flasher At Cappel Crossing

The members of the village councils of Mokena and Frankfort and the members of the town board of the town of Frankfort have signed and presented a petition to the Will County Board of Supervisors requesting that a flasher crossing signal be placed on the Cappel crossing on the Rock Island railroad east of Mokena. The Board of Supervisors has referred the petition to the county good roads committee.

Tinley Lions To Award Pupils With Medals

In order to stimulate greater interest among the pupils of the Tinley Park Public School in working for high marks in their respective grades, the Tinley Park Lions Club will furnish the impetus to create such interest by way of suitable medals which they will award to the pupils having the highest credits in their respective grades at the end of the school year.

A committee consisting of John C. Funk, chairman, Clyde Rice and Fred Gobel has been appointed by President Paul Rauhoff of the Lions Club to confer with the school teachers and members of the school board regarding the proposition. These medals will be awarded at the graduating exercises next June.

Count Luckner

The SEA DEVIL
by LOWELL THOMAS

Sayouth heran awaytosail before the mast, then became a sailor in the German navy, and was the only naval officer to have risen from the ranks; a man of giant physique, a rough-and-ready character, noted no less for geniality and tender-heartedness than for his fog-horn voice and sulphurous language. Before sinking an Allied vessel he brought everyone on aboard his ownship, where he treated them royally.

TINLEY GARDEN CLUB NOTES

BY Mrs. John Swisher
GOLDEN GLOW
Rudbeckia they call you,
In the floral hall of fame,
But I prefer a simple,
And more poetic name:
For, nodding in the sunshine
As merry breezes blow,
You capture all its gladness
And shed a golden glow.
HEARKEN, Ye Garden Lovers!!

Local enthusiasm is distinctly stirred over the coming lecture to be given by Mrs. Linn White, Sept. 27 at the Tinley Park Community Hall, the hour being 2:30 o'clock.

This lecture sponsored by the Garden Club, is the first of its kind to be given in this locality, and will be both interesting and educational. All slides will be in color, and the subject of the lecture will be "The Making of a Garden". If you have not procured your ticket, do so at once. The Garden Club guarantees that every listener will be greatly benefited by what Mrs. White brings to them during the afternoon. For further information on the subject get in touch with Mrs. E. Anderson, chairman of the program committee. Come and enjoy this unusual treat.

Mrs. R. J. Hug, president of the Garden Club had a beautiful Night Blooming Series in bloom the past week.

Mrs. John E. Swisher also had an Easter Lily in bloom in her garden, which she removed and sent to the school so that the children might enjoy it.

Frankfort Road Project Dropped

According to Fred Francis, chairman of the Will County Bond Issue Road Committee, the mile of paving which was to have been laid south of the Lincoln highway thru Frankfort to Route 51, has been dropped, due to the inability of the right of way committee to purchase the necessary right of way thru the village of Frankfort at the price the county would pay, but which the property owners refused to accept.

Mokena Church Engages Pastor From Michigan

Rev. G. Bratzel of St. Joseph, Michigan preached a trial sermon at the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena Sunday. Following the services the church council held a special congregational meeting and Rev. Mr. Bratzel was engaged as the new pastor of St. John's to succeed Rev. W. J. Cramer who recently resigned to accept a call to Melrose Park. He leaves next month.

Try Co-operation

The matter of paving Wolf Road thru Mokena has been a bone of contention for several years and it is a regrettable fact that much personal feeling has been injected into the issue at various times with no successful results.

A fellow townsman had a real personal talk with the editor on this subject and here are a few of his ideas:

"It is time that Mokena awake and have a broader vision. Throw away the hammer and get a horn and boost. It is far easier to tear down than to build up. This applies not only to the highway matter, but other civic matters as well.

"In order to get anywhere you must be in harmony with the powers that be. Mokena can get more results by co-operating with our county board members and other officers. If we can show them a co-operative spirit, they will be inclined to heed our cause also. Instead of being a bunch of scaplers let us work in harmony for the common good."

After this little talk the idea came into the editor's mind that only in unity is there strength. However, the only way to obtain unity is by way of co-operation. It is worth trying.

RETURN FROM VACATION

The Misses Inez Roberts and Gladys Cappel have returned from a delightful trip to Colorado.

Bremen Twp. Rep. Club to Hold Picnic

The Bremen Township Republican Club is sponsoring a big picnic at the Lorenz Grove, Tinley Park this coming Sunday afternoon commencing at 2:30 o'clock. Everybody is welcome.

TRY TO FLIP TRAIN, KILLED

A fast freight on the Rock Island killed a middle aged man while coming around the curve about one mile east of Tinley Park about 8:30 Monday morning. From what meager information was available of the accident, it appears that another man was walking with this man when the freight came along going west and the victim of the accident attempted to flip the fast moving train and was hurled underneath the wheels of the cars, his body being badly mangled and dragged along the right of way for about 400 feet. All the clothing was ripped from the body and there was nothing to identify the victim. The dead man's partner was the only witness to the tragedy. He walked into Tinley Park and told the agent there that a man had been killed "down the line a ways" and left immediately leaving no name or address.

The party killed had no identification marks whatever nor anything in the pockets of the badly torn clothing to lead to his identity.

Section foreman Clyde Rice saw a man answering the description of the party who had notified the Tinley agent of the accident at Summit during the forenoon. Mr. Rice did not learn of the accident until he returned to Tinley at noon. He set out with his motor car to try and trail the man who had reported the accident, but found that he had gone as far as New Lenox and then had walked down the Lincoln highway westward. A search of the highway was made by deputy sheriff A. Walsh of New Lenox while Mr. Rice continued to Joliet on his motor car, but all trace of the man was lost.

Just a short distance from the accident, another man was killed just five days before. He was an inmate of the Oak Forest Infirmary.

MOKENA GARDEN CLUB NOTES

The Mokena Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Charles Geuther, Tuesday, September 10.

The president Mrs. A. Brown opened the meeting by reading a poem by Edgar Guest, entitled "Autumn at the Orchard".

Mrs. Brown asked that bouquets be sent to Marlis Krapp, Bernice Hostert, George Rinke, Jr., Ernest Tonn, Mesdames H. Mall, Alma Brown, H. Schweser and N. Lauffer, all of whom are on the sick list.

The program committee then took charge of the program for the afternoon. Mrs. George Barnes, Mrs. Balaz and Mrs. Steinhagen each read a fine article on "Chrysanthemums".

Mrs. Lowe read an article on "when should Dahlias and Gladiolus be dug up and stored."

A very interesting contest followed by trying to guess the names of leaves of trees, each leaf being attached to a card and numbered.

Seeds were sold. Mrs. Geuther's spacious grounds were lovely and such beautiful Asters, one rarely see's such a gorgeous mass of color.

The next meeting will be Garden visiting day, September 17.

County Supt. Suggests Survey Of Wolf Road

Will H. Smith, Will County Superintendent of Highways has suggested to Fred Francis, chairman of the Will County Bond Issue Road Committee that the committee ought to survey Wolf Road from the Cook and Will County line thru Mokena to the Lincoln highway so that paving could be started next year. He has also suggested that the bridge across the Hickory creek south of Mokena be torn out now and a new concrete bridge built this fall. Mr. Smith considers Wolf Road a very important highway.

Dance Season Ends

The Mokena Men's Club held the last dance of the summer season at their pavilion in the Cappel Grove south of Mokena last Saturday. The Club felt that the cool fall weather and the opening of fall and winter dances in other nearby towns it was best to close the local dance season.

Here Is Stirring Sea Raider Story

The fact that the story, "Count Luckner, the Sea Devil", was written by Lowell Thomas, is enough to commend it to the attention of everyone. Lowell Thomas' first big story of the World war was entitled, "With Lawrence in Arabia", an account of the mysterious Englishman who accomplished such prodigies of valor, defeating the Turks in Arabia and opening up the way for the Allies to Palestine. Thomas accompanied the Lawrence expedition and wrote from an eye-witness standpoint. His book has been translated into nearly all languages and he has told the story personally to more than 4,000 audiences, a lecture record that has never been paralleled. Next he searched the side of the Teutonic Allies in the war for a romantic figure who would match the mysterious characteristics and the dare-devil feats of the "uncrowned King of Arabia." It was several years before he found this figure in the German navy-Count Felix von Luckner, whose story he now tells. Do not miss this, the new serial to start soon in The News-Bulletin and The Tinley Park Times

White Store Leases New Bldg. Being Erected By Former Mokena Man, Joliet

A very interesting and important announcement has been made by J. J. Cohen, manager and owner of the widely known WHITE STORE of Joliet that he has just leased the new three story building which Dr. J. J. Coady of Minooka is erecting east of the Ottawa Street M. E. church in Joliet, for a period of ten years for an aggregate rental of $102,000 or $10,200 yearly.

This announcement has a double significance to Mokena people inasmuch as Dr. Coady was a former Mokena resident for a number of years and is widely known thruout this section.

The White Store activities always make interesting news as not only Joliet, but all of Will and part of Cook County are interested in the White Store.

The growth of the White Store business has been a phenomenal one. Mr. Cohen came to Joliet about ten years ago from Chicago. He established the first White Store with a frontage of 14 1/2 feet on Cass street with three persons in his employ. The store now occupies 101 feet frontage on Cass street and there are 65 persons steadily employed.

Mr. Cohen has been a firm believer in a generous use of advertising space and has been a steady advertiser in the News-Bulletin week in and week out for over a period of 8 years and has made the name of The White Store a household word all over the section in which the News-Bulletin circulates in eastern Will County and part of southern Cook County from which large territory Mr. Cohen draws a fine steady trade all the year around.

The readers of The News-Bulletin look over the White Store ad. every week and announcements of special sales are eagerly taken advantage of as the public has been educated to know what White Store Bargains mean. Generous advertising coupled with the purchase of merchandise in large lots has enabled Mr. Cohen to build up a store business which turns its stock over nine times yearly.

The new home of The White Store will be ready about the first of the year. The structure will be constructed of terra cotta, brick, and concrete. Its front will be of white terra cotta and the entire building will be used for merchandising. The third floor will be used for office, storage purposes and an employees assembly hall. The new building will be erected at a cost of approximately $75,000.

The many friends of Mr. Cohen and his White Store congratulate him on his wonderful business success and wish him equally as much success in the future.

Lions To Advertise Tinley

The Tinley Park Lions Club is a firm believer in advertising their town and at the Lions meeting Monday evening a sketch was shown of a proposed bill board 40 feet long by 10 feet high which the club is considering placing at the north side of the Village at Goesville. H. W. Heiner of Tinley Park has drawn a sketch of the proposed bill board. In addition to advertising the merits of Tinley Park this huge advertising sign will have 12 spaces for a business directory of the village. The space will be rented out by the month and year.

Orland vs Mokena Play Sunday

A red hot ball game is slated for this Sunday at the Schiek diamond north of Mokena when the Mokena and Orland ball teams play. Both are strong teams and have many victories to their credit. All the ball fans are urged to see this game.

Sunday Mokena played a hot game with the Joliet Rivals. The box score follows:

Tinley Lions To Place Safety Signs

The Tinley Lions Club is strong for safeguarding the welfare of the Tinley kiddies and especially in protecting them from the dangers of automobile traffic. The club has received a number of sketches of a fine aluminum sign that the Niles Machine Company of Lebanon, N. H., is putting out for this purpose. The club is considering a design made in the shape of a shield with a row of kiddie figures on top and the inscription "Protect Tinley Park Kiddies" with the Lions Club emblem in the center. It is proposed to have these signs erected at the north and south entrances to the village and on either side of Oak Park avenue in front of Hick & Mesenbrink market. The signs are about 16x18 inches.

TINLEY SEEKS BUS SERVICE

With its rapid development as a residential section, Tinley Park is finding itself in need of better and cheaper transportation. The Rock Island commuters ticket rate from Tinley Park to Chicago is said to be much higher than other roads are charging for the same distances from Chicago. Plans are now being discussed by the Tinley Lions Club regarding bus service from Tinley Park to Blue Island and from there to 63rd and Halsted street also to Homewood and Matteson where connections can be made with the I. C. railroad. Plans regarding a bus schedule are under way and may be submitted to the bus companies before long.

CHAPTER XIII

In the dead of night Doris was awakened from troubled dreams by a muffled knocking at her door. Startled, she sat up, wondering if the sound were not a part of her dream. But the knocking was repeated.

"What is it? What is it?" she cried, and a voice said:

"Mrs. Waterman!"

"Yes—yes—"

"Something terrible has happened! I think you had better come down at once!"

"What is it? What is it?" she cried again. But there was no answer. She slipped on the light, slipped swiftly out of bed and hastily began to dress.

At the same moment O'Hara, summoned from the garage over the house phone, walked into the library. Wilson stood across the room, looking from the open French window.

"What the devil's the matter?" cried the chauffeur.

Wilson turned a white face upon him. "Thank God, you've come," he said; "thank God!"

"What's the matter?"

"Something's happened—something dreadful."

"What is it?"

"Mr. Stanley has disappeared."

"What?"

"Yes."

The three maids rushed in, almost on the housekeeper's heels, in various stages of negligee—frightened, shivering, inquiring. Their idea seemed to be that the house was on fire.

"No—no—no—shut up, for heaven's sake," ordered Wilson. "There isn't any fire."

The whole group advanced upon him with frantic inquiries, but he waved them away, crying, "Stand back, all of you—stay where you are! Don't touch a thing in this room. There's been a struggle. Can't you see? I'm afraid Mr. Stanley's been murdered."

Silence fell upon the little group. Awe-stricken they looked about the room. Their eyes fell upon the disorder of the place—the overturned table, the broken glass, the twisted rug, the papers covering the floor, swept from the desk. Upon this silence Doris entered, pale as moonlight, in a negligee of emerald green, which she had hurriedly cast over her nightgown, her bare feet gleaming from a pair of little mules.

"What's the matter? What's the matter?" she cried, advancing into the room. There was no answer. "Where's Mr. Stanley?"

"That's just it, Mrs. Waterman," agreed Wilson, "we don't know."

"Don't know?"

"Mrs. Waterman," continued Wilson, "I'm afraid something has happened to Mr. Stanley."

"Something? What?"

"I'm afraid he's been murdered!"

With a gasp Doris sank into the nearest chair.

"What's this? What's this?" said a new voice.

The group turned and looked at the door. Waterman stood there. He still wore his dress trousers, and he had donned a silk dressing gown. There was a handkerchief tied about his neck. "Who says Mr. Stanley's been murdered?"

"I'm afraid it's a fact, sir," answered Wilson.

"What on earth do you mean?"

"We can't find him anywhere."

"And therefore he's been murdered," cried Waterman, ironically. "Rot! He's probably gone out to take a walk."

"At midnight?" Doris put in.

"Why not? Any law against it?"

But Wilson turned to the chauffeur and pointed to the open French window.

"O'Hara, go out through that window. Have you got a flashlight?"

"Sure," answered O'Hara, "always carry one for use about the car."

"Some one has been through that window," Wilson continued. "If there's a trail, follow it. See where it leads."

"Right," responded the chauffeur. He disappeared through the window.

"What did I say?" resumed Waterman lightly. "O'Hara will find him mooning about the lake somewhere. He'll have the laugh on us. I say, Wilson, what the deuce do you mean getting us all out of bed for a mare's nest like this?"

Wilson regarded him obliquely. "It isn't a mare's nest, sir."

"No?"

"No, sir. When I come into this room and find it littered with evidence of a desperate struggle, as you see—" He pointed to the wreckage.

"When I find this table overturned, everything that was on this desk swept upon the floor and—here he pointed to a dark red stain upon the twisted rug—"blood upon this rug—"

A murmur of approval came from the little group of servants.

Doris drew her negligee closer about her with a little shiver. "Who saw him last?" she asked.

"The last I saw of him," replied Wilson, "he was talking here with Mr. Waterman."

Doris fixed her eyes upon her husband.

"Rollin, what happened between you two?"

"Why nothing," he answered easily. "We just talked for an hour or so, and then I went to bed."

"Leaving him here?"

"Yes. He said he was going to write a letter or two. You remember, he told O'Hara to sit up a while, so as to take them to the village post office tonight."

O'Hara stood in the French window again. His face was grave.

"Did you—did you find anything?" asked Wilson, speaking with difficulty.

"No—but some one has walked down that path to the lake tonight."

Wilson continued the inquiry. "Did you go as far as the lake?"

"I did."

"And the boat?—The boat?"

"It's gone. And I found this caught on one of the bushes." He produced a large white handkerchief.

There was silence in the room for a moment. Doris broke it.

"Here," she said, "give it to me."

The chauffeur obeyed.

She took the handkerchief, examined it carefully, dropped her eyes, and said faintly: "No, there's no mark upon it."

She rolled the handkerchief into a ball.

Wilson turned to Waterman. "Well, sir, he said, 'are you convinced now that it isn't any mare's nest?'"

"No, I'm not," was the prompt response. "It's ridiculous—all this fuss. I'll bet you anything you like that if you sit here quietly for an hour or so, Jim Stanley will walk in and—Lord! How he will laugh!"

Doris rose. "Well," she announced, "I'm not going to sit here quietly for an hour. Wilson, call the police."

Wilson started for the telephone. Waterman stopped him.

"Doris, don't be a fool," he cried. "Call the police," she repeated imperiously.

Again Wilson started for the telephone. But as he did so, a quiet voice was heard to say, "What is this?"

Startled, the little group turned as one. The Swami, clad in his customary robes, stood in the doorway.

"By gad, it's the Swami," cried Waterman. "Come in, sir. We had forgotten all about you. I suppose we woke you up with all this tempest in a teapot?"

"No—no—" he said quietly. "I was awakened from a dreamless sleep by a sense of trouble. Then something led me here."

He walked slowly to the center of the room and looked about the startled group.

"Ah—it's Mr. Stanley, is it not?" He is not here.

"Yes, sir," Wilson informed him. "Mr. Stanley has disappeared."

"Ah?"

"We have every reason to fear foul play."

"Foul play?"

"Yes, sir, murder."

The faintest possible smile flickered over the Swami's face. "But you look so shocked," he said mildly. "It is amusing. If, as you say, Mr. Stanley has been murdered, he has but passed to another cycle, where perhaps he will be happier than here. He was my friend and his heart was clean."

The Swami's ear caught the ghost of a sob. He turned to Doris—she had covered her face with her hands.

"Ah, my child," he said, "you suffer. Do not—I beg you. It would grieve him." He laid his hand lightly upon her shoulder.

Doris, in a Negligee, Hurriedly Cast Over Her Nightgown.

"I don't know anything about cycles," said Wilson with startling distinctness, "but I'm going to call the police." Again he started for the telephone.

"Wait," said the Swami with quiet swiftiness. "Later, perhaps, you shall summon those imbeciles. But not now." And after a little pause he went on, "You have questioned the domestics?"

"No, sir, not yet."

The Swami sat down. "Do so," he said.

Wilson turned to the maids. "Ann," he said, "when did you see Mr. Stanley last?"

"About six o'clock, sir," replied the maid, "as he was passing through the hall."

"Sarah?"

"Just before dinner, sir, as he was leaving his bedroom."

"Bridget?"

"Sure, I didn't see him today at all. at all. I been in the kitchen all day. What in the name of all the saints would I be knowin' about—"

"Hush, hush, hush!" murmured Wilson. "Mrs. Burkett?"

"I haven't seen him since the middle of the afternoon," replied the housekeeper, "when I looked out the window and saw him playing with Henry Cabot."

"Henry Cabot?" inquired the Swami, puzzled.

"That's the cat, sir."

"How do you happen to be fully dressed at this hour of the night?" inquired Wilson.

"I fell asleep in my chair and slept till you come knockin' on the door."

Wilson turned to the butler.

"Jefferson?"

"I saw Mr. Stanley last, sir," replied the butler, "when I fetched a bottle of port to the library, not long after dinner."

"You locked up, as usual?"

"Yes, sir, about ten o'clock. And then I went to bed."

Wilson turned to the Swami. "Do you wish to question them further?"

The Swami did not answer him but turned to the chauffeur.

"And you?"

"Well, sir—" answered O'Hara. "Mr. Stanley sends for me about ten o'clock and says he wants me to sit up. He's going to have some letters for me to mail. So I gets busy around the garage, and about midnight Mr. Wilson rings me up on the house phone and says will I come in."

"How did you get in?" demanded Wilson.

"I got a key to the kitchen door."

The Swami raised his hand.

"Let them go," he said, "they know nothing."

"Jefferson, O'Hara, wait in the hall," said Wilson; "the rest of you go to bed."

The servants departed, whispering excitedly among themselves, with many backward glances.

Wilson closed the door behind them, and turned and said to the Swami, "Let me tell you everything I know, sir."

The Swami checked him. "I have eyes," he said, "I have seen. There was a struggle, a table overturned, ornaments broken, that desk swept clean, and there, I perceive, is an article of wearing apparel."

As he pointed to it on the floor, Wilson stooped and picked it up. It was a black dress tie.

"And," continued the Swami, "upon the rug is blood. Hm," he paused a moment before he went on, "the secret is here—let us find it."

Slowly he turned his somber gaze upon Waterman. No one spoke, till Doris said sharply:

"Rollin, why don't you answer him?"

Waterman started violently.

"Tell him everything you know—everything!" she commanded.

"I don't know anything, I tell you," Waterman answered her. "After you left us, we talked for an hour or so, and then I went to bed. That's all I know about it. If any—"

"Hush, hush," breathed Doris.

He followed her gaze till it rested on the Swami. The Hindu lay back limply in his chair. His eyes were closed. After a time he began to speak, in a level emotionless voice.

"I see—I see—a weapon—a revolver—It's here—in this room—search—"

Wilson wandered about the room, his eyes darting here and there. Suddenly he gave a cry and stooped.

"Take care," came the Swami's voice, "there are fingerprints upon it."

Thus warned Wilson picked up the revolver gingerly by the tip of the barrel, and laid it upon the desk. The Swami opened his eyes. It was as though a spell had been lifted.

"Well, well, what next?" demanded Waterman impatiently.

"You have told us all you know?" inquired the Swami gently.

"Yes, everything," snapped Waterman.

"That's not true," cried Wilson.

"What?" said Waterman, rising suddenly, in a rage.

"No," said Wilson, nothing daunted, "it's not true. You say nothing happened while you were here. Well, I know of one thing that happened, and that's a quarrel."

"What say you?" said the Swami.

"I say a quarrel!"

"That's enough," Waterman interrupted sharply. "If you think I'm going to sit here while you pour out your insane fancies, you're mistaken. I'm going to bed and tomorrow morning you'll be in jail. There was no quarrel." He turned to the Swami.

"There's not a word of truth in what he says—not one word. And now, good-night."

He turned on his heel.

"Wait," commanded Doris. "Do you want us to call the police?"

"No, of course not," answered Waterman. "It's too silly! Jim'll walk in here any minute, I tell you."

But the Swami only said to Wilson, "Speak on."

"Well, sir," said the little clerk, "I was busy over some accounts in the office desk—when about ten-thirty my bell rang. I came in here. Mr. Stanley and Mr. Waterman were here. Mr. Stanley gave me an order, and I went out. It happened I didn't close the door quite tight, and pretty soon, though I was not listening, I heard their voices raised. Then I listened, naturally enough, because they seemed to be angry. Finally one of them, I think it was Mr. Waterman, said, 'That's a lie!' Then some one came and closed the door and I heard no more. These doors are very old and very heavy, you see. No sound comes through. I finished my work, and about midnight I came in here, and found—what you know. Then I roused the house." He ended.

The Swami turned to Waterman and inquired slowly, "All this, you say, is a lie?"

"Every d—d word of it!" cried Waterman.

The Swami rose. "Approach," he said.

Waterman slowly recoiled, his eyes fixed upon the Swami, as if hypnotized.

At this moment Doris held out the handkerchief, saying in a barely audible voice, "I was mistaken. There is a mark upon this handkerchief—"

"R. W."

Waterman slowly collapsed in a chair, and hid his face in his hands.

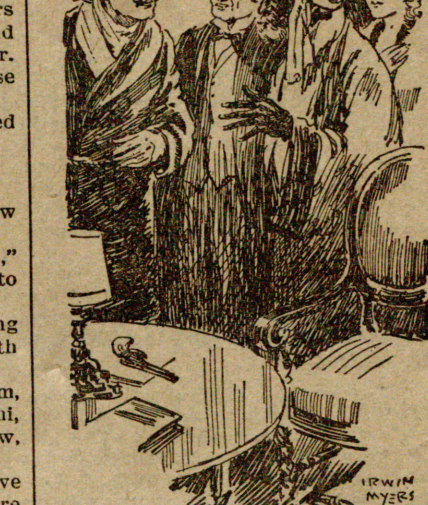

"And now," murmured the Swami, "the truth, my son."

And presently, after one false start, in a low voice Waterman began to speak.

"After my wife went to bed and left me here alone with Jim—I—I didn't want to stay. I had a presentiment that something would happen, and I—"

"Presentiment?" prompted the Swami.

"Yes—and now I look back upon it, it seems to me that every word he spoke to me from the time I entered this house, shows that he had determined to pick a quarrel with me as soon as he got a chance."

Waterman Slowly Recoiled, His Eyes Fixed Upon the Swami, as if Hypnotized.

Waterman made another effort. "Well, I tried to get away—said I was sleepy, and tired to go to bed, but he wouldn't let me. So I stayed on."

"You wished to please him?"

"Why—yes. Well, the talk ran along, till presently he began to say things I couldn't understand, and pretty soon he accused me of some thing."

"Of what?"

"Of—disloyalty to him."

Doris smothered an exclamation. For an instant the Swami allowed his eyes to rest upon her; then he turned them back to Waterman.

"What was the accusation?" he inquired.

"Does that matter?"

"Perhaps not."

"Yes," said Doris sharply, "I think it does."

"Well?" the Swami prompted.

"I'll tell you if my wife will leave the room."

"No," she decided promptly, "I'll stay."

And the Swami said, "You may omit the accusation. I think I know it already."

Waterman cast an agonized glance upon the Hindu and presently struggled on.

"Well, sir, one thing ran to another. I was very angry—I admit it. And finally the lie was passed. Then—then he drew a gun on me."

"Remember," the warning was gentle. "There are finger prints upon it."

"Yes," cried Waterman, spurred to speed, "and they are probably mine. He threatened me with it. I took it away from him—threw it away. Then he fell upon me. As he did so the lights went out—I don't know why. We struggled in the darkness, and fell to the floor fighting. As we fell, something struck my head, and that's all I knew for quite a while. I don't know how long I was out, but when I came to, the lights were on again. Jim was gone. I was so sick and dizzy I could hardly stand up. The room swam before my eyes. I had only one idea—to get upstairs to my room. Little by little I finally made it, fell on my bed and lay there till I heard Wilson rousing the house. And that's all I know so help me God! If Jim has disappeared, he went himself. If he's been killed, I didn't do it. I didn't do it, as God's my judge!"

The Swami allowed him a brief interval for self-control, but presently he asked—"The revolver, was it fired?"

"No."

The Hindu moved slowly to the desk, picked up the gun by the barrel, and offered it to Doris. The weapon was still broken as it had been when Waterman cast it away. The Swami faintly extracted a cartridge and examined it.

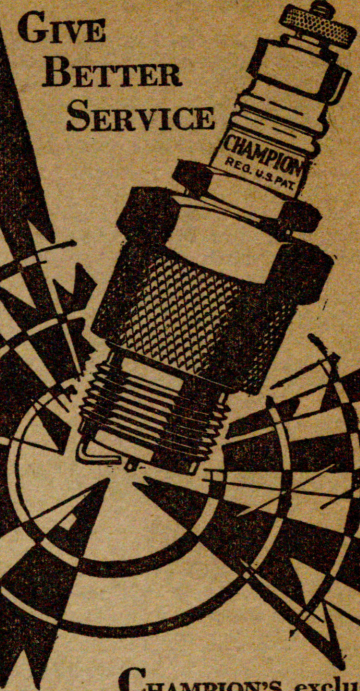

"One cartridge only," he said, "while I think has been discharged. Madame examine the barrel."

"Take care," said Wilson quickly, "the finger prints!"

OLD DOCTOR'S IDEA IS BIG HELP TO ELDERLY PEOPLE

In 1885, Dr. Caldwell made a discovery for which elderly people the world over praise him today!

Years of practice convinced him that many people were endangering their health by a careless choice of laxatives. So he began a search for a harmless prescription which would be thoroughly effective, yet would neither gripe nor form any habit. At last he found it.

Over and over he wrote it, when he found people bilious, headachy, out of sorts, weak or feverish; with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. It relieved the most obstinate cases, and yet was gentle with women, children and elderly people.

Today, this same famous, effective prescription, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the world's most popular laxative. may be obtained from any druggist.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

MOKENA

Mrs. W. R. Lynk and daughter Elizabeth returned Sunday from a vacation spent in Wisconsin. Mr. Lynk will remain for a few weeks longer.

A very sudden cool spell made its appearance Monday night.

Miss Marcia Liess who has been spending her vacation on the ranch of her father, Frank Liess in Montana, returned Friday night. The weather had turned quite cold the day she left for home.

Marcus Liess, a former Mokena boy was recently married and is now located in Forsyth, Montana where he is employed in a garage.

Mrs. J. W. Jackson is visiting in Morgan Park with her cousin, Miss Myrick.

Mrs. John Horras and infant son returned Monday from the Silver Cross hospital.

Arthur Hall left Sunday on a business trip to Detroit.

An insect bite over his eye caused quite a lot of trouble to John Horras last week. The bite caused a severe swelling which had to be lanced.

Mrs. Fred Brown who has been ill the past week is improving.

Frank Liess former Mokena banker now located in Montana has gone into the business of raising silver foxes for the fur market.

Mr. Liess threshed 10,000 bushels of wheat this season.

Coal is plentiful, cropping out of the ground on his ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryther are visiting with the latter's sister, Mrs. Lizzie Morarity.

Mrs. Julius Hirsch has had a new fire proof roof placed on her house.

Mrs. Charles Erickson who has been ill and in Silver Cross hospital for several weeks, remains about the same. Her many friends hope for her early recovery.

Mrs. Margaret Oestreich of Joliet spent the past week with her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Semmler.

The condition of Mrs. Nicholas Lauffer who is a patient in Silver Cross hospital remains about the same.

Miss Mabel Schoeneck entertained in her home Saturday evening. The occasion being her birthday. The guests were from the office force in the LaSalle street station of the Rock Island Lines. Guests were also present from Joliet, Fairmont, Orland Park, Mokena and Hammond, Ind. A chicken supper was served at midnight. Miss Schoeneck received many pretty gifts.

Miss Mabel Schoeneck and Mrs. William Nill of Hammond, Ind., left Monday for New Orleans, La., where they will visit the latter's brother and other friends.

Janet Cooper has returned from Silver Cross hospital and is improving from an operation performed there.

Mrs. Mall of Aurora, is visiting in the home of her son, Harry.

Mrs. Harry Mall who returned from Rochester, Minn., last week is improving nicely following an operation at Mayo Bros. hospital.

Miss Bernice Hostert is ill in her home.

The condition of Mrs. S. Terpening remains about the same.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bechstein spent the week end in their home in Mokena.

Word comes from Mrs. Christie Sipple who is ill in the Wheaton Sanitarium that she is improving.

FRANKFORT

Harvest Thanksgiving and Mission Festival services were held last Sunday in St. Peter's Evangelical church. German services were held at 10:00 a. m., with English services at 7:30 p. m. Rev. J. Paul Goebel of Gilman, Rev. H. J. Schick of Chicago and Rev. G. S. Gerhold were the speakers of the day. The services were well attended. An offering for the Pension fund was received.

Mrs. G. Eichmeier is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Lambrecht in Matteson, Ill.

Miss Jennie Hamilton and mother of Joliet visited last Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fraich.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krusemark of Chicago and Mr. Albert Krusemark of Frankfort returned home Friday from Star Lake, Michigan where they spent several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baumgartner moved into their new home last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wunderlich of Joliet spent last Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baumgartner.

The annual Hansen family reunion was held in the Wm. Schmuhl grove on the Lincoln highway last Sunday, Sept. 8. There were 172 persons present. The oldest man present was John Stoebeck of Iona, the oldest lady was Mrs. Morgan of Joliet, the youngest man was Geo. Hansen of Joliet and the youngest lady was Mrs. Thulin of Chicago.

There were guests present from Iona, Joliet, Plainfield, Mokena, Chicago Heights, Green Garden, Orland Park, Chicago, Manteno, Spencer, Manhattan and Frankfort. There were loads of good things to eat and a regular good time was enjoyed by all. Next year the reunion will be held on the first Sunday in August.

The Martha Sewing Circle held an all day quilting party in the church parlors on Thursday, September 12.

Eastern Professor Defends Chicago

Julius Rosenwald, who regards the Rosenwald Industrial Museum, which is to be housed in the old Fine Arts building in Jackson Park, as an integral part of Chicago's coming Century of Progress exposition, recently sent to the editors of Chicago's newspapers photostat copies of an article on the Windy City which was written by Professor Jacob H. Hollander, head of the economics department at John Hopkins University.

Correcting the wide impression that Chicago is nothing but the battlefield for warring gangsters, Dr. Hollander wrote:

"What a ridiculous caricature the stay-at-home easterner entertains of Chicago!"

"A sink of civic iniquity, garnished with racketeers and redolent of hooch. This is what he has been prepared to meet. Instead, he finds a living symbol of America. A city towering 'tall among her sisters fair'—with loins girt for a race still to be run, proud in her strength, boundless in her aspiration, with economic idealism and bigness increasingly knit with beauty. The pace has been so swift as to be staggering. The returning visitor finds a Chicago as remote from the city of the Hardine convention of 1920 as the White City of 1893 was from the prehistoric settlement of the widow's cow."

"Moreover, this is speed, not spurt. The city develops its own driving power and there seems no assignable limit to the pace."

"The Chicagoan sees his city the metropolis of America. Nearer the center of area and population, with a boundless hinterland of agricultural wealth, natural resources, industrial enterprise consuming demand, he snaps his finger at the seaboard location of New York."

"London and not Liverpool is the metropolis of England, just as Paris and not Havre is of France, and Berlin not Bremen or Hamburg of Germany."

"Most amazing of all, this Chicago is determined to be not only big and strong but beautiful. The city of the stock yards is becoming the city of the lake front and of Lincoln Park. Very much remains to be done; but there is an indomitable intention."

"1933 the world will come again to Chicago. At least one car-window observer—or his spirit—will marvel if new values in the history of American cities are not then recorded."

Growing interest abroad in the world's fair is indicated by the arrival in Chicago on missions of inquiry of J. Sigfrid Edstrom, president of the Swedish General Electric company, and Dr. Porto da Silveira, Brazilian editor and author and member of the cabinet of the Brazilian state of Parana.

Both visitors, who were entertained by the centennial celebration's committee on nationalities, displayed great interest in the progress being made in the plans for the fair.

September 20 has just been announced as the date of the next meeting, in New York city, of the National Research Council's advisory committee which was appointed to arrange the scientific theme of the 1933 celebration.

Dr. Frank Baldwin Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company is chairman of the committee.

The executive committee of the group includes Dr. George K. Burgess, of Washington; Professor M. I. Pupin, New York; Dr. Max Mason, New York; Ganon Dunn, New York; Dr. Vernon Kellogg, Washington; Dr. William Allen Pusey, Chicago, and Maurice Holland, New York, who is executive secretary.

Cranberry Cultivation

Out of a total of 29,964 acres of cranberries in the United States, 14,000 are in Massachusetts and 13,000 in New Jersey. Cranberries are little grown outside of the United States. About 100 acres are being cultivated in Nova Scotia and they have been tried with little success in Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark.

Clean Electric Bulbs

The dry dust and dirt that accumulates on electric lamp bulbs and inside electric lighting fixtures often causes a decrease of illuminating value of 30 per cent within three months and where soot and oily dust are found the results are even worse. Therefore, all electric lamp bulbs and fixtures should be cleaned thoroughly and regularly.

ORLAND PARK.

Mayor Jennings has gone on a vacation trip.

Wm. Beagley entertained thirty-one guests Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dilly, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dilly of Alpha, Minn., who are visiting with relatives in and around Orland Park.

Rev. Sanders and family motored to Madison, Wisconsin, Monday.

Work has been started on the laying of new concrete walks along 143rd street.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Loebe left Monday on an automobile trip to the Dells of Wisconsin, and from there they are going to Albert Lee, Minn. They expect to return the latter part of next week.

Howard Beagley, manager of the local milk plant has purchased a new Chevrolet sedan.

Rev. Wm. Gorey is away on a vacation trip.

The new dwelling of Martin Smith on 143rd st. is fast nearing completion.

Mr. Thomas of Chicago is building a new home in the southwest part of the village.

Orville Schmaedeke had a narrow escape from injury last week when another car crashed into his car while driving on Keane Avenue. Mr. Schmaedeke's car was badly damaged, but luckily he was not hurt.

Mrs. Christ Yunker who has been in poor health for sometime, is very ill at present.

Mr. Ray Cannon and family leave next week on an automobile trip to Michigan.

John Helenhouse and James Cannon are planning on taking a trip to Sarasota, Florida in the near future. Work on the Southwest highway is at a stand still at present awaiting the state gas tax income.

Clarence Beagley has had a very heavy run of wiring work the past few weeks.

Thomas Cooper who has been nursing a very sore hand caused by a nail scratch, is improving nicely.

The annual bazaar of the Orland Park M. E. church will be held in the church parlors on October 3rd.

A special meeting of the Ladies Guild was held Thursday to prepare for the forth coming bazaar.

The village board met Monday night. Quite a number of water bills, vehicle licenses and special licenses are delinquent and the board is considering ways and means of enforcing their collection.

Police Chief Carl Quigley has received a number of complaints of dogs attacking people in the village. It looks as tho there will be a few dog funerals.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.

9 Points Tell Small Towns How to Get New Industries

As the tendency toward decentralization of industry is quickening the interest of small-town Chambers of Commerce and other civic bodies in the possibilities of their respective communities as sites for new enterprises, John G. Learned, vice president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, summarizes in nine points how such industrial expansion can be made mutually advantageous to the community and the business.

These nine points, Mr. Learned says in the August 17 issue of the Electrical World, are based on his company's experience of four years in aiding new industries to locate in the territory it serves. "Fifty fairly large industries and a much larger number of smaller industries began operations in the territory served by the company during 1928," he says, in proof of the soundness of the company's policy.

The company's aids to the location of new industries in its territory consist of:

1. Studies of raw and semi-finished materials available from agricultural, mineral and industrial sources of the industrial communities served by the company.

2. Analyses of the labor supply, wage rates, housing conditions, etc., with respect to various types of specific industries which contemplate locating in communities served by the company.

3. Studies of transportation costs of raw materials and finished products to and from proposed plant locations in various communities or areas.

4. Investigations of the present and potential market possibilities of a product, nationally as well as with in the area served by the company.

5. Examinations of the financial conditions and management of companies which are seeking special inducements.

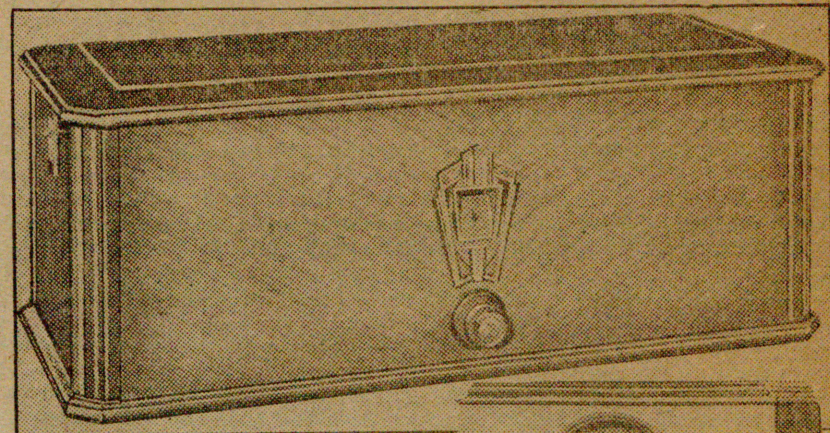

6. Participation in the planning and operation of definite community industrial development programs.

7. Promotion of reciprocal buying among industries located in the area served.

8. Co-operation with other departments in stimulating the use of the company's service in manufacturing plants.

9. Supplying communities with data helpful in determining the industries which are desirable or suitable.

Opening DanceGoodings Grove*Saturday Nite*Music by Rollie Meeks*New Sets Use Screen Grid Tubes

Two new Radiolas employing the new AC screen grid tubes and a new power amplifier in a specially designed circuit to bring out their full capabilities, have been announced by E. A. Nicholas, vice president of the Radio-Victor Corporation of America.

One of these sets, Radiola 44, is a table model, and the other, Radiola 46, is a console with a built-in electrodynamic loudspeaker. Both receivers are encased in cabinets of two toned walnut veneer.

"Radiola 44," the announcement of Mr. Nicholas explains, "utilizes three UY-224 screen grid tubes, two of which serve as radio frequency amplifiers, and the third as a power detector. The new UX-245 power amplifier tube is used in the single stage of audio amplification. The receiver has three tuned radio frequency circuits, but because of the characteristics of the screen grid tubes, has as much selectivity as a set having four tuned circuits and using the standard three-element tubes. The two UY-224 tubes which are used as radio frequency amplifiers give as much amplification as four of the ordinary three-element tubes.

"The screen-grid power detector tube gives such a strong signal that it makes possible the elimination of one stage of audio frequency amplification, reducing to a minimum the possibility of distortion, sometimes present where successive stages of audio amplification are used. The output energy from the plate of this power detector tube is transferred by a choke and filter system to the UX-245 power amplifier tube instead of through a transformer. This results in an exceedingly high quality of musical reproduction and brings out particularly well the full tones of the bass register. As an additional precaution to insure undistorted reproduction, the UY-224 power detector tube has a radio frequency filter which prevents any radio frequency disturbance from being carried over into the audio amplifier.

"The UX-245 power Radiotron used as an audio amplifier is capable of delivering a power output equal to that of the UX-210 Radiotron, but operates with a lower plate impedance which results in a greatly improved quality of tone reproduction. As used in Radiola 44, the UX-245 Radiotron will give undistorted volume in excess of the requirements of the average home."

An unusual type of selector dial is employed in Radiola 44. In addition to the usual scale markings of zero to one hundred, the selector dial has approximate kilocycle markings to facilitate tuning. When the set is in operation, the scale markings and numbers, greatly magnified, are projected upon a small translucent, composition screen in the center of the escutcheon plate. Another unusual feature is a two-in-one tuning and volume control, arranged concentrically so that they appear to be one control, adding materially to the external appearance and enabling the user to operate both controls simultaneously with one hand. A local distance switch maintains the quality of reproduction for both strong local and weak distance stations.

The same radio circuit and Radiotrons as used in Radiola 44 are incorporated in Radiola 46, together with a built-in electrodynamic loudspeaker of the Model 106 type.

"Increased wages for the wage earner, and prices for the farmer, to enable them to buy all the products of each other that they can consume," were advocated by John H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor in his Labor day message, as a plan for bringing mutual benefit to both agriculture and labor.

The amount of tax on inheritance paid into the state treasury during the last fiscal year was $9,866,843.88. The records of Oscar Nelson, auditor of public accounts, show this to have been the largest amount ever received from this source. The amount of this tax paid in during the year 1923 was $5,250,000.

Plans for the Capital city's largest office building by the Central Illinois Public Service company have been announced by J. Paul Clayton, vice president and general manager of the company. The building will be a 15-story structure and may cost in the neighborhood of one million dollars. The new building is scheduled to be completed January 1, 1931.

Of a total of 29,252 miles of roads improved throughout the Union in 1928, Illinois took fifth place among states with a total of 1,344 miles of improvement, according to figures just received in Springfield. Iowa took fourth place with just one more mile of road improvement for the year.

Harry W. Hanson, retiring chief clerk of the executive department of the secretary of state's office, has assumed his new duties as assistant director of trade and commerce. William C. Clementz succeeds Mr. Hanson.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the appointment of the Illinois Pulaski sesqui-centennial commission and at the same time issued a proclamation calling upon the people of the state to observe the day of October 11 in memory of General Pulaski, Revolutionary war hero.

An order announced by the Illinois commerce commission denied the application of the Chicago and Illinois Midland railroad to establish on less than the amount specified by the statutory limit a rate of $1 a ton for the shipment of coal in the Springfield district.

With the remodeling of the Lincoln monument in Springfield, it is probable that the remains of Abraham Lincoln II, grandson of the emancipator, will be removed to Arlington cemetery in Washington, D. C., to rest beside those of his father, Robert T. Lincoln.

Longer hours and more rapid disposition of cases will be the policy of Governor Emmerson's new commerce commission which held its first session in Springfield a few days ago. The personnel of the new commission is as follows: Chairman, Charles W. Hadley; Wheaton; G. Gale Gilbert, Mt. Vernon; J. Paul Kuhn, Batavia; William Brinkman, Walter Wilson, and Phil H. Collins, Chicago.

Congressman Frank W. Ramey of Hillsboro, and Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, delivered the principal addresses before 500 members at the annual picnic-reunion of the Egyptian club at Washington park in Springfield, September 1. At a business meeting the following officers were elected: R. A. Robertson, president; H. L. Williamson, vice president; Mrs. H. C. Gott, secretary; David V. Felts, treasurer. Attorney Roy G. Hill, Springfield, is the retiring president.

On the eve of the reopening of public, private and parochial schools throughout the country, the American Automobile association broadcast a warning to motorists that the return of thousands of children to the schoolroom will create new traffic hazards and urged careful driving on the part of every car owner.

Work on the compilation of a book to be entitled "Illinois—Its Resources, Present Development and Possibilities," has been started by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. Various agencies, organizations and individuals will contribute sections or chapters on subjects about which they are best qualified to write. The book will go to press about October 1. Scott Brown, Chicago, is president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, and C. G. Ferris, Chicago, is general secretary.

B. L. Catron, assistant attorney general who is handling for the state the numerous franchise tax injunction suits that have been filed by outside corporations, is preparing about 40 demurrers to be filed in Circuit court pending a decision of the United States Supreme court in a case appealed from the Illinois Supreme court. The complainants seek to prevent William J. Stratton, secretary of state, from paying the taxes into the state treasury. Mr. Catron has also been designated to handle the gasoline tax injunction suit for the state.

The proposal of Henry Ford to move the old Postville courthouse in Lincoln to Dearborn, Mich., has met with a great deal of opposition on the part of the Lincoln townsfolk. Mr. Ford recently purchased the old courthouse, made famous by Abraham Lincoln who appeared in its halls as a lawyer at the bar during the years 1840 to 1848, and now plans to make it a part of his "American village" in Dearborn. It is Mr. Ford's ultimate aim to develop his village into a national shrine. Mr. Ford was in Lincoln Labor day to look at the courthouse.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the appointment of 11 members of the Lincoln Memorial commission, in accordance with recommendations at the last general assembly which asked for the appointment of a commission to plan a suitable memorial to Abraham Lincoln and to report its conclusions to the next general assembly. The 11 members named by the governor will co-operate with the 5 named by the speaker of the house and 5 named by the president of the senate.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the appointment of Perry B. McCullough of Lawrenceville to be superintendent of foods and dairies in the state department of agriculture. The appointment becomes effective at once. Mr. McCullough succeeds Walter R. Kimzey.

Congress recently passed a law granting to Gold Star mothers, widows of veterans of the World war, and certain others, whose sons or husbands are interred in the cemeteries of Europe, a free trip to said cemeteries at the expense of the government. Such trips will begin next year. This legislation was sponsored by Congressman Frank M. Ramey from the Twenty-first Illinois district, Hillsboro.

President F. E. Williamson of the Burlington railroad says that during the past year that system loaded more cars of grain and live stock than any other railroad in the United States. The total of cars loaded with grain for the 12 months was 118,494 and that of live stock 161,853 cars. Iowa furnished the most live stock and Nebraska led with grain.

Plans are being made by nearly every city in the state for the world wide observance on October 21 of the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the incandescent electric light. This celebration, called "Light's Golden Jubilee," is in honor of and a testimonial to the inventor of the incandescent light—Thomas Alva Edison, who although eighty-two years of age, is still spending long hours daily in his laboratory at Menlo Park, N. J.

The first attack on the constitutionality of Illinois' new three-cent gasoline tax act was made a few days ago with the filing of an injunction suit in the Sangamon County Circuit court by the Chicago Motor Coach company against Garrett DeF. Kinney, director of the state department of finance. The suit seeks to restrain Kinney from paying over $2,457.51 into the state treasury. This sum represents the amount of the tax paid for August under protest by the company.

The first shipments of watermelons from the section surrounding Oquawka, which claims to produce more melons than any other part of the Central West, started a few days ago. This year's crop will reach at least 5,000,000 melons, the growers estimate.

Illinois coal in a recent week was produced at a rate of 1,500,000 tons a day. The production figures still continue above those for 1927 and 1928. The "Buy Illinois Coal" campaign, conducted by the Illinois Coal Sales association, of which Edward A. Wieck, East St. Louis, is secretary-manager, is producing excellent results. This campaign is being conducted in co-operation with the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson officially accepted the new monument to Pere Marquette for the state of Illinois a few days ago at the unveiling two miles west of Grafton. Two hundred and fifty-six years ago, Father John Marquette, gentle French priest and missionary, set foot on land that is now part of Illinois. The monument marks the spot where Marquette and Joliet with a little band of five followers headed their canoes into the Illinois river from the Mississippi.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the appointments of Dr. Paul F. Mahaffey, Springfield, and Dr. Nicholas von Schill and Dr. John Kinison, both of Chicago, as members of the state board of examiners for chiropodists, under the state department of registration and education. Charles S. Wanless, Springfield, has been named as a member of the real estate examining board.

Carl H. Weber, chief building and loan examiner in the office of Oscar Nelson, auditor of public accounts, has just returned from a convention of the National Association of Building and Loan supervisors held in Salt Lake City. The convention honored Mr. Weber by electing him president of the national organization.

On recommendation of the state pardon board, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has refused to grant executive clemency to 41 convicts in the state's prisons.

Sunday School Lesson

(© 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 15

TEACHING THE LAW OF GOD

GOLDEN TEXT—The entrance of thy words giveth light.

LESSON TEXT—Nehemiah 8:1-18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Studying God's Word.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Studying God's Word.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Joy in God's Word.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Call for Trained Teachers.

This lesson is a fine illustration of the rightful place of God's Word in the life of a nation. The only certain cure for national ills is a return to God and obedience to His Word.

I. The Word of God Being Read (vv. 1-3).

1. The eager assembly (v. 1).

The people gathered themselves together and requested Ezra to bring the book of the law.

2. A representative assembly (v. 2).

It was made up of men, women and children. The men did not leave the spiritual affairs to the women, neither were the children left at home. The Spirit of God can speak through God's Word to the whole family sitting in the pew.

The lesson lasted for five or six hours, from morning until midday.

II. The People's Attitude Toward God's Word (vv. 4-6).

1. Due reverence shown (vv. 4, 5).

When Ezra opened the law, all the people stood up out of respect for God's Word.

2. They joined heartily in the prayer (v. 6).

As Ezra led them in prayer, they joined heartily in saying, "Amen, Amen," bowing their faces to the ground.

III. God's Word Being Interpreted (vv. 7, 8).

The attitude of the people toward God's Word largely depends upon the minister. Proper dignity and solemnity should be manifested by the minister when reading the Holy Scriptures.

1. He stood up where the people could see him (v. 5).

2. He read distinctly (v. 8).

3. He caused the people to understand the reading (v. 8).

IV. The Effect of Applying God's Word to the Life of the People (vv. 9-18).

1. Conviction of sin (v. 9).

The Word of God is quick and powerful (Heb. 4:12). It brings conviction of sin (Acts 2:37). The divine method of convicting men of sin is to have God's Word applied by the Holy Ghost.

2. Weeping turned into joy (vv. 10-12).

When sins have been perceived and confessed, there is forgiveness. God desires forgiven sinners to enter into the joy of forgiveness. Continued mourning will not atone for sins that are past, unfits one for present tasks, and dishonors a pardoning God. Besides, joy has a salutary effect on one's entire being. "The joy of the Lord is your strength" (v. 10).

3. Blessings were shared with others (vv. 10-12).

True joy manifests itself in giving to others; pure religion goes out to minister to the poor (Jas. 1:27).

4. The people obeyed (vv. 13-18).

From the reading of the Scriptures, they found that the Feast of Tabernacles had long been neglected. They proceeded to keep this sacred feast in a way that had not been observed since the days of Joshua (v. 17). In the keeping of this feast they dwelt in booths, thus typifying their pilgrim character and bringing to remembrance the days of their wilderness journey.

V. Separation from the Ungodly (Neh. 13:1-3).

As soon as they had heard the Word of God, they separated themselves from the mixed multitude.

VI. The House of Worship Was Cleared and Order Restored (Neh. 13:4-14).

No nation or people can be strong which neglects the worship of the true God.

VII. Restoration of the Sabbath (Neh. 13:15-22).

Israel had long violated the Sabbath. To ignore the essential law of the Sabbath is national suicide. Unnumbered evils follow in the wake of the desecration of God's Holy day.

VIII. Restoration of God's Law of Marriage (Neh. 13:23-31).

When those who had intermarried with the heathen were brought face to face with their sin, they separated themselves from their ungodly companions.

Magnetic Power of God

God's word of old, given through His prophet Isaiah, was for the multitudes under the gate, and remained now as ever: "I am found of them that sought me not." Strait is the gate indeed, but it is ever an open gate; and the Heaven behind is too full of love divine for any barrier to constrain it. Many an erring human soul has been drawn to the gate unawares, despite its folly of blindness, by the sheer magnetic force of God's unfailing love within.

Cornstalk Tests Show Deficiency

Farmer Is Enabled to Identify Faults in Plant Food and Soil.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cornstalk testing by chemical methods has proved valuable by enabling the farmer to identify deficiencies in the plant food in his soil.

Nitrogen, potassium, and phosphorus salts are the plant foods most often found to limit the crop yields. George N. Hoffer, of the United States Department of Agriculture, describes the symptoms and the chemical tests by which the farmer may establish shortages of nitrogen and potassium.

Nitrogen Starvation.

"Corn plants growing under soil conditions of nitrogen starvation," he says, "display a yellowish green to yellow color of the leaves and stalks. By splitting open cornstalks and applying to the tissues a few drops of a solution of diphenylamine in concentrated sulphuric acid the presence of reserve nitrates is indicated by the production of a blue color. The absence of any reserve nitrates is indicated when the chemical produces no change in color. The chemical is applied to the split stalk between the nodes or joints.

"Potassium starvation is not indicated directly by chemical test, but it has been discovered it usually happens that iron accumulates in the joints of the stalk. Potassium deficiency usually shows in marginal leaf firing and by a tendency of the plants to die prematurely or to produce chaffy, starchy ears. Iron accumulation in the joint may be identified by applying to the joint tissues of a split stalk a few drops of a 10 per cent solution of potassium thiocyanate and then adding a few drops of dilute (1 to 2) hydrochloric acid. If potassium is deficient the joints will discolor."

Qualitative Tests.

These tests, Mr. Hoffer makes clear, are qualitative, rather than quantitative. They do serve to show the element which is limiting the best growth and productivity of the plant. When used as a guide for the interpretation of the direction in which increased fertility should be established they are valuable and practical, and the tests may make possible important savings in the fertilizer bill, or else indicate that increased expenditure would prove profitable. Testing chemicals are inexpensive and should be used at the time the ears of corn are maturing.

Valuable Constituents

Lost From Manure Pile

A manure pile under the eaves, against the side of the barn, or manure lying for months in an open barn yard is a sight all too common on American farms. When this product is exposed to the leaching action of the rains, the losses are great, even amounting to half of the total value in periods of two to five months. Obviously, the loss falls on constituents, which are very soluble and therefore are most quickly available to plants.

Through fermentation a large share of the nitrogen in the manure may be dissipated into the air as a gaseous product called ammonia or gaseous nitrogen. The strong smell which every farmer has noticed in close, poorly ventilated horse stables is due to the escaping ammonia produced by the breaking down of nitrogen compounds. In the hot fermentation which takes place in dry, loosely-packed litter, the temperature may rise high enough to cause "fire fanning," when as much as 80 per cent of the nitrogen may be lost. Phosphoric acid and potash are not lost through fermentation, but heavy losses of these constituents may occur through leaching.

Agricultural Hints

Alfalfa is profitable!

A barn protected by lightning rods can laugh at a thunder storm.

Fall-plowed land is best for alfalfa; the plowed soil is firm and compact.

Soy beans are more prolific growers than cowpeas and would benefit soil more in proportion.

Most weeds have little or no feeding value while some are poisonous and some flavor the milk.

Quack grass, Canada and sow thistles, and leafy spurge may be killed by spraying the foliage several times with sodium chlorate.

Contrary to former belief and practice, continued cultivation of corn, potatoes and similar crops on most soils is unnecessary after weeds are eradicated.

The growing of legumes, such as sweet clover, previous to the growing of wheat is a method followed by many farmers that is resulting in wheat of higher protein content.

Trimming, removal of diseased leaves, and discarding injured or diseased specimens are necessary to give the bunch or pack of vegetables a neat appearance and to check the spread or development of disease.

PAJAMA COSTUMES ORIENTAL; VELVET VOGUE RETURNS

THERE are pajamas for indoor wear and there are pajamas for outdoor wear. No matter which way you take it the pajama costume, without a doubt, is one of the most enticing themes, from the standpoint of an opportunity to give play to imagination, ever offered to the fashionist.

The stylizing of the modern pajama, whether viewed from an indoor or an outdoor angle, involves every trick of creative genius known to fashion art. No material, from simplest cottons to most magnificent velvet for the jacket, with moire for the trousers, present an interesting theme. Long, simple coats of velvet or crepe satin, to wear over night-dress, are attractively designed.

Fashion, like history, repeats itself. We are to enjoy the velvet vogue once again, and more so. Those lovely-to-sight and to-touch transparent velvets which so completely captured the heart of the feminine world during past months are playing a return engagement, with added features in the way of new color glories, super styling deand formal weaves, are omitted from the list of pajama media, and no color combination but what finds expression in the realm of pajama modes.

To the woman whose interest centers about "indoor" types, a beguiling Japanese lounging pajama of orange silk brocade should prove an inspiration. This cunning outfit made such a hit with one of our well-known screen stars, Kathryn Crawford, if you please, that she adopted it for her very own, and here it is—pictured above for the enlightenment of readers who are pajama-inclined.

Speaking of pajamas of mandarin influence, have you seen the new models of glove silk? They are about as fascinating a proposition as has come the pajama way. A particularly alluring "indoor" type is of fine black milanese silk, the trousers with a flare about the ankles, the pull-over blouse with a V-shape neck and long rather snug sleeves which flare over the hands. Bright tangerine faces the sleeves and both the blouse and the trouser hemlines, while gaily colored Chinese flowers, done in applique, adorn the blouse front.

A perfectly adorable night robe pajama ensemble, one which would enhance the most fastidious trousseau, tails, and that which especially adds zest to the mode, flattering lace and lingerie accompaniments.

It is difficult to imagine anything in the way of an afternoon gown more genuinely appealing than the advance velvet models which make radiant browns their chief color scheme.

Of all the beguiling colors offered this season, none outrival the exquisite dahlia shades which have only just recently projected their rich tones into the fashion spectrum. Expressed in terms of velvet, these superb flower colorings are fairly breath-taking in their deep glamorous tones. Then, too, the now-so-fashionable dark greens are themselves most enchanting.

In this connection just a word about the new chenille-crocheted snug little caps which are now featuring in millinery displays. They top velvet costumes of matching color most enchantingly. Why not have your milliner match up a crochet-chenille headpiece to the color of your velvet gown? You'll love it!

Much of the prestige of the afternoon velvet frock as fashion presents it today is due to its prettily feminized styling. For instance, the gown pictured below, wins its way into instant favor not only through the lure of the velvet of which it is fashioned, is made of eggshell satin for the trousers and the sleeveless low-neck slip-over blouse. A short three-quarter coat of eggshell georgette completes this trio, the entire being effectively trimmed with ecru alencon lace and dainty ribbon flowers.

Intriguing Effect in Velvet and Lace

Contrast between trousers and blouse, or jumper, as the case may be, is a tendency which is creating considerable interest. For instance, but because also of an intriguing styling which plaits sheer velvet with as much ease as if it were chiffon or some other as dainty a weave. Then, too, there is the inevitable lace touch which shows no partiality between daytime and evening velvets, adorning each in ways that are tuned to the occasion.

I have loved the feel of the grass under my feet, and the sound of the running streams by my side. The hum of the wind in the tree-tops has always been good music to me, and the face of the fields has often comforted me more than the faces of men.—John Burroughs.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

To have variety without increased expense for the food budget is a constant problem for the thrifty housewife.

Monotony in food dulls the best appetites, so it is the duty of the menu-maker to keep ever alert to avoid such ruts.

Jellied Veal.—For supper or luncheon try this: Cook together a hock of veal and one and one-half pounds of lean pork, a few pepper corns, a bay leaf, allspice and salt to season. Remove all the indigestible portions of the meat and cut into small pieces. Reheat with enough liquid to fill the mold which will be used. Pour in the mold, adding salt, pepper and lemon juice and when cooled a few olives or a sweet pepper thinly sliced. Serve cut into slices.

Hot Slaw.—Shred a hard cabbage or chop fine. Place in cold water for a few minutes and drain, if the cabbage is not fresh and crisp. Place over the heat with a small shredded onion to a quart of cabbage, cover with boiling water and cook five minutes, drain and add a little mild vinegar, a generous seasoning of butter, pepper and salt to taste and reheat. Serve at once.

Orange Shortcake.—Slice three or four good-sized oranges, depending upon the size of the oranges and the family. Cover with sugar to sweeten lightly and let stand while the short cake is being prepared or even longer will improve them. Prepare large-sized baking powder biscuits, baking in a quick oven. Split and butter while hot, heaping on plenty of the orange fruit and juice, top with the other half biscuit and cover again with the fruit. Serve at once. This is a luscious shortcake which is so quickly prepared and so good that it will always be a welcome dessert at any table. To the average lover of old-fashioned shortcakes, the sweetened cake, served cold with fruit, is only a very poor substitute for a real short cake served piping hot from the oven.

Yellow Tomato Preserve.—If fortunate enough to have some of the small yellow tomatoes this preserve will be a joy in the winter. For each pound of the fruit use three-fourths of a pound of sugar and one lemon. Pour boiling water over the tomatoes to remove the peeling. Allow to stand only a minute or two, well covered, then drain and add cold water. Place the tomatoes in an earthen dish to stand with the sugar over night. Drain off the sirup and boil until it threads. Cook the lemon sliced very thin in a little water until tender. Add water and lemon with the tomatoes to the sirup and cook until clear. Seal in hot jars.

Coffee Flavored Food.

Coffee as a flavor lends itself to many combinations and is particularly delightful in gelatin jellies and dainty desserts.

Coffee Jelly.—To one quart of coffee infusion add one-half box of gelatin soaked in two-thirds of a cupful of cold water a half-hour, then dissolve in a pan of hot water. Add one-half cupful of sugar to the coffee and stir in the gelatin. Add a bit of vanilla before it thickens. Pour into molds and serve unmolded with cream and sugar.

Wellesley Fudge Cake.—Take one-half cupful of butter, three eggs, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two-thirds of a cupful of strong coffee, one heaping cupful of chopped walnuts, two cupfuls of brown sugar, three-fourths cupful of milk, a small pinch of salt, two squares of chocolate. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and mix in the order given. Melt the chocolate and add last. Bake in two pans. Use filling of orange and frost with icing.

Coffee Layer Cake.—Cook one-half cupful of milk and four tablespoonfuls of finely ground coffee. Meanwhile cream one-half cupful of butter with one cupful of sugar and three egg yolks well beaten. Sift together two cupfuls of pastry flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add the strained coffee and milk alternately with the flour to the butter and sugar. Fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs and bake in layers.

Iced Maraschino Coffee.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of coffee sirup, three-fourths of a cupful of cream, six tablespoonfuls of minced maraschino cherries and one pint of vanilla ice cream. Add vichy or seltzer water. Into each glass measure two tablespoonfuls of the sirup, two of the cream and half a tablespoonful of cherries. Fill the glass with the sparkling water, adding two tablespoonfuls of ice cream. Serve at once. The glass for further garnishment may have a topping of cream with a cherry or two.

No Appeal From Verdict of Chinese Death Squad

Whatever may be said about China as being backward, at least there is one modern note struck with more than visible insistency in the nation's capital. Nanking has brought the old-time execution squad thoroughly up to date. A familiar sight in ancient China used to be the squad of honor which percolated through the streets with drawn execution sword, meting out summary justice (or injustice in some cases) upon all who disobeyed the law. Gilbert and Sullivan used to sing about the snickersnee. But this has been put away. The execution squad now carries rifles. It is to be seen in Nanking—seven men and an officer. The leading man, as they went through the streets in single file, bears a flag upon which is inscribed in Chinese characters a warning to observe the law. There are several such squads on duty 24 hours a day, and its world is life or death to offenders. It supplements the police force, but its action is far more swift and deadly.

Ever Young

Howard Chandler Christy, about to sail for Rumania to do a portrait for Queen Marie, marveled at the billions spent on powder and rouge, beauty and massage creams, lip sticks and what not. Then he laughed and said: "If Shakespeare were alive today, he'd give us a Seven Ages of Woman. I suppose it would run like this:

"The babe,
The child,
The girl,
The young woman,
The young woman,
The young woman,
The young woman."

Traffic cop gets summons

Even he can't get away with it

"DON'T try to put anything over on Nature," is the way a cop would express it. "Sooner or later she'll get you. Give you a ticket and lay you up in a place where you'd rather not be. Even cops can't get away with it. Like everyone else, if they don't pay attention to the warnings they get a summons that lands them in the doctor's office.

"What the doctor advises is Nujol. Says Nujol will regulate you just like you regulate traffic. Keep things from getting in a jam. And the doctor is right. Just ask the healthiest men on the Force. If they need Nujol—with all the exercise they get—what about the fellows that roll by in their cars?

"Just take a tip from me. You may have the best intentions in the world. But everybody gets tied up at times. Nature can't always take care of things without help.

"Our Medical Chief tells me that Nujol isn't a medicine. It contains absolutely nothing in the way of medicine or drugs. It's simply a pure natural substance (perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York), that keeps things functioning at all times as Nature intends them to. Normally. Regularly. It not only keeps an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal."

Start Nujol today. It won't cost you much—not more than the price of some smokes. Worth a try, isn't it?

You'll find Nujol at all drugstores. Sold only in sealed packages. Get some on your way home today.

Sickly Boy, 7, Gains 15 Lbs. Father Happy

"My boy, 7, would not eat. I gave him Vinol and the way he eats and plays now makes me happy. He gained 15 pounds."—J. F. Andres Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Tastes delicious. In Tinley Park by H. C. Vogt, druggist

G. C. Elmore Buys Tinley Park Tract

A tract of forty acres in Tinley Park, at the southwest corner of 175th st. and Ridgeland ave., has been purchased by Grover C. Elmore for subdivision purposes. The holding was acquired from John C. Andres and others for an undisclosed cash consideration and reconveyed to M. E. Hagen as trustee.

The property, which will be known as the Elmore Tinley Park Estates, will be divided into one and a half acre plots with 100-foot frontages.

Monee Fair Will Open Next Week

The 25th annual Monee district fair, an agricultural exposition and livestock show, will be offered on the Monee fairgrounds next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Fireworks will be offered next Thursday and Friday. All school children will be admitted to the fair grounds Friday free of charge. Baseball games are planned for every afternoon. On Wednesday the Manteno and Wilmington nines will play. Thursday afternoon will mark the meeting of the Matteson and Mokena teams. Friday Wheatland and Manhattan play.

TINLEY PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Stelter of Tinley Park took a tour with Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Koehler and daughter Dorothy of Chicago to Canada, Niagara Falls, New York city, Washington, D. C., Maryland and Virginia and all points south and east, covering 2,252 miles in an area of 14 states. They enjoyed a delightful tour of the Cumberland and Alleghany mountains for two days. They returned home Sunday evening and reported a wonderful trip.

Rev. John Chaney, wife and children were dinner guests last Wednesday evening in the John E. Swisher home.

Mrs. E. Moss, daughter Marion and son Glenn, Mrs. H. Moss and daughter Evelyn motored to Garfield Park last Sunday to enjoy the wonderful flower show, given by the "Men's Garden Club".

The county has now placed one of the large black and white danger signs at the intersection of 147th st. & Ridgeland ave., at Goeseville, 3 miles north of Tinley which has been the scene of a number of fatalities of late.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scheneck recently returned from a wonderful auto trip thru the south. They visited Muscle Shoals while there and were much impressed with the big dam and found most of the big factory plants once busy during the war are now idle. Mr. and Mrs. Schoeneck own a number of lots at Muscle Shoals.

The Triangle Club held their regular monthly meeting last Monday in their Club Room in the Scheer Building. They contemplate the redecorating and cleaning of the entire premises.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Uthe who formerly lived north of Tinley, have moved into their flat in the Thies Building on Oak Park ave.

Our popular fellow townsman, Wm. F. Koehler passed the 70th mile stone in his life's journey last Saturday and his children sprung a fine surprise in honor of the occasion. The Saenger hall was rented for the festive occasion. A wonderful time was enjoyed by the guests until the wee sma' hours of the morning. Mr. Koehler is hale and hearty and his years rest lightly on him. His many friends extend hearty congratulations.

In the absence of a policeman, Sel by Hirsch local village trustee can be seen during the noon hour at the intersection of 173rd street and Oak Park avenue directing traffic to avoid accidents to school children going to and from school.

The Tinley Lions Club, the very active civic organization held their semi-monthly meeting in Andres hall Monday evening.

The secretary read his reports of the Labor Day dance which showed a nice sum to be added to the treasury for local improvements.

Many of the Lions took a keen interest in the subject of forming a bowling league and playing at the new Homewood Recreation Rooms. Many of the Lions have done some bowling and a good many more are willing to learn and immediately a committee was formed consisting of the following members: Lions E. Anderson, C. H. Goesel, Bert Fulton and Clyde Rice, who at once started active canvassing of bowlers and would-be bowlers in and out of the club proper.

Report was made by the secretary, that all houses in the village were now numbered and work would be completed as soon as numbers are received.

Avoid Disappointing It
"The immoderate use of chewing gum may lead to stomach disorders," says a physician. This is easily understandable. When the jaws begin to work the stomach naturally looks for something to come down, and gets peeved if it doesn't.—Boston Transcript.

Honor Washington's Alone
James Monroe received all but one of the electoral votes in 1820. An elector from New Hampshire voted for John Quincy Adams in order that no President other than George Washington should have the honor of receiving a unanimous vote.
